I am pleased to present the Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission’s 2019-2020 Corporate Plan.

Since the commencement of the Commission on 1 January 2019, our focus has been on establishing our operations and consolidating the regulatory functions from the former Australian Aged Care Quality Agency and the Aged Care Complaints Commissioner.

Our 2019-2020 Corporate Plan builds on our initial achievements and supports the full operation of our powers and functions during an important period of reform in the history of aged care in Australia.

Our operating environment continues to be under the spotlight of the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety. The Royal Commission is determining the full extent of issues in aged care and understanding how all stakeholders can work together to address both the challenges and opportunities of delivering valued aged care services now and into the future.

This is a critical period for the Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission as we implement reforms to strengthen the quality and safety of aged care services and improve consumer experiences and outcomes through the introduction of the new Aged Care Quality Standards and the Charter of Aged Care Rights. The transfer of compliance functions to the Commission from the Department of Health, alongside other reforms, will achieve streamlined end-to-end regulation of Government-funded aged care services, which will benefit both consumers and providers.

Our 2019-2020 Corporate Plan supports the Government’s expectation that we protect and enhance the health, safety, well-being and quality of life of aged care consumers, engender confidence and trust in aged care services, and promote provider engagement with consumers in the planning and delivery of their care.

Our Corporate Plan is informed by the advice of the Aged Care Quality and Safety Advisory Council in relation to strategic priorities and by the Minister for Aged Care and Senior Australians.

Janet Anderson PSM
Commissioner
August 2019
Introduction

The Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission operates independently and objectively in performing its functions and exercising its powers as set out in the Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission Act 2018 (ACQSC Act) and the Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission Rules 2018 (the Rules).

The Commission is a non-corporate Commonwealth entity under the Public Governance, Performance and Accountability Act 2013 (PGPA Act).

Our 2019-2020 Corporate Plan addresses the requirements under the PGPA Act and the ACQSC Act.

Our Corporate Plan is part of our annual performance cycle, ending with our annual report and annual performance statement.

The Commission’s performance measures cascade through our corporate, operational, business, team and individual performance plans.
Who we are

Our purpose
To protect and enhance the safety, health, well-being and quality of life of aged care consumers.

Our vision
Older Australians trust and have confidence that aged care services protect and enhance their safety, health, well-being and quality of life.

Our role
To independently accredit, assess and monitor aged care services that are subsidised by the Australian Government. The Commission also seeks to resolve complaints about these services, provides education and information about our functions and engages with consumers to develop and promote best practice models of care.

Our values
We undertake our work consistent with the Australian Public Service (APS) values, outlined in the Public Service Act 1999.

Impartial
We are apolitical and provide the Government with advice that is frank, honest, timely and based on the best available evidence.

Committed to service
We are professional, objective, innovative and efficient, and work collaboratively to achieve the best results for the Australian community and the Government.

Accountable
We are open and accountable to the Australian community under the law and within the framework of Ministerial responsibility.

Respectful
We respect all people, including their rights and their heritage.

Ethical
We demonstrate leadership, are trustworthy, and act with integrity, in all that we do.
Our functions

Our functions are set out in the ACQSC Act and drive our strategic priorities under this Corporate Plan.

Our functions are:

1. To protect and enhance the safety, health, well-being and quality of life of aged care consumers

2. To promote the provision of quality care and services by:
   i) approved providers of aged care services; and
   ii) service providers of Commonwealth-funded aged care services

3. To develop, in consultation with aged care consumers and their representatives, best practice models for the engagement of providers with their aged care consumers and to promote those models to providers.

4. To deal with complaints made, or information given to the Commissioner in accordance with the Rules about an approved provider’s responsibilities under the Aged Care Act 1997 or funding agreement.

5. To regulate aged care services according to the Rules by accrediting, conducting quality reviews, monitoring the quality of care and services and registering quality assessors.

6. To provide education and information about matters relating to one or more of the Commissioner’s functions to consumers and their representatives, providers of aged care services and the public.

Our approach

We carry out our functions in a way that supports improved consumer outcomes, more effective complaints resolution, effective risk-based regulation, better engagement with stakeholders and greater accountability and transparency.

This approach includes:

- supporting the Government’s broader policy framework including its consumer-centred and quality improvement aged care agenda
- giving a high priority to cooperating with and responding to requests from the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety
- speaking with one voice and making it easy for people to access our services
- being innovative and open to new ways of working to improve outcomes for aged care consumers
- developing and maintaining productive working relationships with aged care consumers, providers and other key stakeholders
- Investing in our workforce culture and staff capability to achieve our priorities
- being transparent and joined up in the way we work
- being accountable and seeking feedback to improve our practices and performance.
Our operating environment

The Australian population is ageing, with older Australians a growing proportion of the total population.

In 2017, 15% of Australians (3.8 million) were aged 65 and over; this proportion is projected to grow steadily over the coming decades. ¹

More than 1.3 million older Australians currently receive some form of aged care service from 2,717 residential aged care services, 2,249 home services and 35 National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Flexible Aged Care services across Australia (as at 31 March 2019).

The Government is undertaking significant reform of the aged care sector to promote the safety, health and well-being of older Australians. The establishment of the Commission on 1 January 2019 represented a major reform to the regulation of aged care services. The proposed transfer to the Commission of aged care regulatory functions currently undertaken by the Department of Health (planned for 2020) will further strengthen and streamline regulatory processes.

The Commission provides a trusted single point of contact in relation to aged care quality and safety for aged care consumers, their families and aged care providers. The Commission provides more joined up regulation, supports better engagement with consumers and providers, and promotes transparency and accountability.

The Chief Clinical Advisor provides expert clinical advice to the Commission’s staff and providers. Under our consumer engagement functions, we are working with consumer representative bodies and providers to develop best practice models of consumer engagement in aged care.

The Aged Care Quality Standards, introduced on 1 July 2019, promote consumer-centred care and ensure a sharper focus on consumer outcomes. The new Standards together with the new single Charter of Aged Care Rights will give older Australians and their families a greater say in the care they receive, and increased confidence in the quality of their care and services.

Key areas of reform on which the Commission is working collaboratively with the Department of Health to develop are summarised in Table 1.

Our regulatory approach

The Commission uses the full range of its complementary functions under the ACQSC Act to facilitate a responsive, risk-based regulatory approach.

This enables the Commission to better manage risks and respond appropriately to instances of failure.

- Risk-based means the focus of our activities is on the areas of greatest potential harm to safety, health and well-being of aged care consumers.

- Responsive means we respond to the context, conduct and culture of the organisations we regulate when we decide what action to take.

Our approach means that we direct our resources in response to risks to the safety, health, well-being and quality of life of aged care consumers. This includes analysing and sharing regulatory information relating to complaints about a service to assist our understanding of the service’s relative risk of non-compliance with the Aged Care Quality Standards and the behaviour of the service in relation to meeting its broader responsibilities for care and services.

The range of tools we use to support our regulatory approach include:

- education of consumers and providers;
- complaints resolution where the outcome results in an informed, empowered consumer and (where required) improvements in care implemented by the provider;
- publication of sector and individual provider performance data;
- assessment against the Aged Care Quality Standards and escalating requirements to remedy findings of non-compliance with them; and
- penalties for persistent and/or serious non-compliance.

Our regulatory approach seeks to promote an aged care system that empowers consumers, develops safer systems of care, inculcates a culture of safety and quality, and learns from mistakes. A system operating in this way will give the community, and in particular older Australians, greater confidence that the aged care they access will meet their needs and provide the best possible experience and outcomes.
Our regulatory performance

The Commonwealth Regulator Performance Framework sets out the Government’s clear expectations of Commonwealth regulators.

We are accountable under this framework for our regulatory functions against six outcome-based key performance indicators comprising:

• reduced regulatory burden
• communications
• risk-based and proportionate approaches
• efficient and coordinated monitoring
• transparency
• continuous improvement.

This sets a strategic framework for us to improve our systems, processes and performance in specific areas such as case management, our data on risk and performance, and reviewing our operational practices to achieve greater efficiency and targeted outcomes.

This framework applies to our regulatory performance in both residential and home services and we embed these performance measures into planning for our capabilities and regulatory services.

We regularly seek feedback from the sector and use this feedback to inform continuous improvements to our approach and to adapt to changes in our external environment.
Our plan at a glance

1. Continue building the Commission as a trusted and effective regulator

2. Promote the provision of quality care and services

3. Enhance engagement of aged care consumers

4. Deliver effective complaints resolution for aged care consumers

5. Deliver effective risk-based regulation against the Aged Care Quality Standards

6. Deliver timely information and education to promote the Commission’s functions

Our capability

We continue to build organisational capability to support delivery of our purpose and functions. Key areas of capability improvement include:

Leadership and culture
We continue to support our leadership capability through a distributed leadership approach and enhanced communication and engagement activities.

Stakeholder engagement
We continue to improve our engagement with stakeholders through strengthened partnerships and consultative processes. We are committed to listening and improving our services from the feedback and complaints we receive.

Change management
We are focused on ensuring an effective Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission and implementation of aged care reforms through enhanced change management capability.

Innovation
We are committed to exploring new ways of working to achieve efficiencies and more effective processes for regulation of aged care services and management of complaints.

Quality improvement
We are committed to implementing a quality assurance framework to support continuous improvement of the Commission’s operations.

Information Technology
We continue to improve our information technology capability through the implementation of our ICT strategic plan and investment in innovative solutions supporting our performance and data analytics capability.

Governance
We continue to enhance our governance through engagement with the Aged Care Quality and Safety Advisory Council.

Workforce
We are investing in our workforce to attract and retain highly skilled and capable staff. A priority is ensuring our front-line staff are equipped with the skills and capability to support the implementation of the new Aged Care Quality Standards.

Risk management
We are working to better understand sector-wide and provider risk through the development of an enhanced risk profiling framework. We continue to enhance our risk management policies to better understand and manage enterprise risks.
Our risk management and oversight

We are committed to effectively identifying and managing risk as required by Section 16E of the Public Governance, Performance and Accountability Rule 2014.

We have a clear methodology that identifies potential adverse events, the likelihood of their occurrence, the impact of their occurrence, and mitigation strategies in the event of their occurrence.

Our risk management approach also recognises the positive opportunity of engaging with risk to ensure we maintain our value to consumers and the aged care sector.

Risk is managed across all levels of the Commission through a continued focus on strengthening rigour and consistency in our business processes, effective governance to ensure transparent decision making, and continuous improvement in financial management to ensure efficient use of resources.

The key risks that we are responding to in the current environment include:

1. meeting Government and community expectations of our role and functions
2. acting in a timely manner to implement Government decisions in response to findings and recommendations of the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety
3. pursuing Government aged care reform priorities in parallel with the Royal Commission’s work, including the transfer of compliance functions from the Department of Health to the Commission to create an end-to-end regulatory model
4. sufficiency of resources to meet increases in complaints and incidences of failure in the delivery of aged care services
5. providers’ understanding of and capability to address the requirements of the Aged Care Quality Standards
6. timeliness and effectiveness of education and information to support successful implementation of the Aged Care Quality Standards
7. sufficiency of flexibility in our regulatory approach to address emerging issues
8. sufficiency of regulatory intelligence and data analytics to effectively monitor risk and performance of aged care services
9. sufficiency of resources and capability to support transformational change.
